

Project Id	100
Project Title	Towards a history of human trafficking networks in late 20th century Southeast Asia
IName	Firpo
fName	Christina
Faculty Phone Number	756-2834
Faculty Email Address	cfirpo@calpoly.edu
Additional Faculty
Faculty Department	History
Project Description	Southeast Asia is one of the world's nexuses for human trafficking. To this point, the trafficking has been studied as a sociological phenomenon. I propose to take a new methodological approach to study transnational human trafficking in the late twentieth century from an historical perspective. I propose to work with three students to conduct interdisciplinary primary- and secondary-source on the trafficking of Southeast Asians for labor and sex work. The aim of this project is to produce an article to be published in a peer-reviewed journal. Please note that Ara Kim and Maureen Malone, current applicants to the honors program, have expressed interest in this project.
Interdisciplinary Nature Description	Though this project is historical in methodology, it draws from the theoretical models of gender studies, political science and philosophy as well as other liberal arts and humanities disciplines.
Links
Number of Honors Students Requested	2
Applicable Majors	ENGL, ES, FR, HIST, HUM, IS, JPNS, LS, MLL, PHIL, POLS, PSY, RELS, SOCS, SOC, SPAN, WS
desired_res	I would prefer students with humanities research skills. I would be thrilled with (but not limited to) students who can read French, Spanish, Dutch, Japanese, or a Southeast Asian language.
Date Added	2008-10-17 10:53:54
Active	1